There are many important dates in the history of the United States. Some of those dates deal with presidents. April 30, 1789, is recognized as the date our first president, George Washington, was sworn into office. On April 14, 1865, President Lincoln was assassinated.

Other dates deal with wars. For example, April 9, 1865, is the date that General Robert E. Lee surrendered to General Ulysses S. Grant at Appomattox.
